What's Here At Bridgeport?

As you walk through the park, stop, look, and listen. You may be treated to the sights and sounds of some of the park's most elusive residents—birds. Stand quietly along the riverbank and you may hear the clattering call of a Song Sparrow. Pause as you walk along the rock wall and a Hermit Thrush may pop out from its hiding place.

Look up! On most days you'll see Turkey Vultures circling high overhead or possibly a Red-tailed Hawk soaring above the treetops. Binoculars and a field guide will help you identify Bridgeport's birds, but keep in mind that you don't need to name the birds to enjoy their beauty. And be sure not to miss our resident Bald Eagles who have been living and breeding here at Bridgeport for almost a decade.
